

Online Retailers Q&A: Are You Ready for ODR?

February 15, 2016

Part of the European Commission's Digital Single Market initiative is not only to encourage cross-border trade, but also cross-border alternative dispute resolution ("ADR") and today, (15 February 2016) after a five-week delay, it finally launches its European online dispute resolution ("ODR") platform.

Q1: What is it?

A1: An interactive, multilingual platform that it will allow consumers, traders and ADR providers to handle cross-border disputes. Basically, instead of going to court to settle a dispute with an online retailer, consumers can choose ADR and using the ODR platform will allow them to conduct everything online.

Q2: How does this affect online retailers?

A2: By 15 February 2016, all online traders who "intend to enter into online sales contracts or online service contracts with consumers" via their own website within the EU must provide its consumers with an "easily accessible" link to the European ODR platform, which should be located in a "prominent position".

Q3: Is that it?

A3: Not quite, as an online retailer you must:

- Provide customers with a contact e-mail address and a link to the platform;
- Inform consumers of the existence of platform and the possibility to use the platform;
- Include this information in your standard terms and conditions of sale and in any e-mails sent to customers which include a commercial offer; and
- Check whether you are obliged to use ADR, for example, as a member of a trade scheme.

Q4: What if you don't?

A4: Non-compliance could result in Trading Standards civil enforcement, which could escalate into a court order to comply. Failure to do so can result in an unlimited fine or up to two years in prison. The applicable legislation is the European Regulation on Online Dispute Resolution ("ERODR"). Member States will be responsible for laying down the rules on penalties applicable to infringements, which "shall be effective, proportionate and dissuasive". There are rumours of fines being implemented for non-compliance, but these remain rumours for now.

Q5: Where can you learn more?

A5: We've provided some useful links below, or contact one of the authors for additional information or assistance.

- The Platform
- BIS guidance
- Trading Standards List of ADR approved bodies
- The Legislation

This content is provided for general informational purposes only, and your access or use of the content does not create an attorney-client relationship between you or your organization and Cooley LLP, Cooley (UK) LLP, or any other affiliated practice or entity (collectively referred to as “Cooley”). By accessing this content, you agree that the information provided does not constitute legal or other professional advice. This content is not a substitute for obtaining legal advice from a qualified attorney licensed in your jurisdiction and you should not act or refrain from acting based on this content. This content may be changed without notice. It is not guaranteed to be complete, correct or up to date, and it may not reflect the most current legal developments. Prior results do not guarantee a similar outcome. Do not send any confidential information to Cooley, as we do not have any duty to keep any information you provide to us confidential. This content may be considered Attorney Advertising and is subject to our legal notices.

---

This information is a general description of the law; it is not intended to provide specific legal advice nor is it intended to create an attorney-client relationship with Cooley LLP. Before taking any action on this information you should seek professional counsel.

Copyright © 2023 Cooley LLP, 3175 Hanover Street, Palo Alto, CA 94304; Cooley (UK) LLP, 22 Bishopsgate, London, UK EC2N 4BQ. Permission is granted to make and redistribute, without charge, copies of this entire document provided that such copies are complete and unaltered and identify Cooley LLP as the author. All other rights reserved.