Christian focuses his practice on advising data-driven companies on cyber, data and privacy issues. He works with companies from startups to large Fortune 500 multinationals across a wide range of industries.

Christian also advises clients on complying with US and international data protection laws, including the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA) and similar laws passed in other states, Washington's My Health My Data Act, California's Confidentiality of Medical Information Act (CMIA), the federal Telephone Consumer Protection Act (TCPA), Children's Online Privacy Protection Act (COPPA), Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (GLBA), Electronic Communications Privacy Act (ECPA) and Stored Communications Act (SCA), and Europe's General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and ePrivacy Directive.

Christian has substantial experience advising on the cyber, data and privacy aspects of strategic and commercial transactions ranging from series seed financings to nine-figure mergers & acquisitions. He also helps clients prepare for and respond to security incidents – including drafting incident response plans, running tabletop exercises, sending breach notifications, and responding to regulator inquiries.

In addition, Christian assists clients in responding to third-party and law enforcement requests for user and corporate data, including subpoenas, court orders and search warrants. He has litigated many such matters through appeals, which have involved issues of first impression and resulted in published opinions.

Christian's representative matters include advising:

- The petitioner in Facebook v. Sup. Ct. (Touchstone), 10 Cal. 5th 329 (2020), resulting in the criminal defendant having a burden to satisfy a seven-factor test to justify a subpoena to the social media provider*
- The petitioner in Facebook v. Sup. Ct. (Hunter), 4 Cal. 5th 1245 (2018), resulting in a ruling that the criminal defense subpoenas seeking private content from the social media provider were unenforceable*
- The petitioner in Facebook v. Sup. Ct. (Touchstone), 15 Cal. App. 5th 729 (2017), resulting in a ruling that the criminal defendants had no constitutional right to the discovery of social media records held by the social media provider*
- A nonparty email provider in response to a subpoena in Europlay Capital Advisors v. Does, 323 F.R.D. 628 (C.D. Cal. 2018), resulting in a ruling that the discovery motions against the email provider must be filed in the district where the provider is headquartered and where its custodians of records reside – not in any district where the provider has an office – per Rule 45 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (FRCP)*
- A company served a search warrant that included a notice preclusion order in In Matter of Search Warrant for [redacted].com, 248 F. Supp. 3d 970 (C.D. Cal. 2017), resulting in a ruling that the indefinite nondisclosure order to the custodian violates its First Amendment right to speak*

- Several nonparties on behalf of the petitioner/objector/appellant in Yelp v. Sup. Ct., 17 Cal. App. 5th 1 (2017), resulting in a ruling that the review website has standing to assert the First Amendment rights of its users*
- A nonparty social media provider in response to subpoenas in Music Grp. v. Does, 82 F. Supp. 3d 979 (N.D. Cal. 2015), resulting in a ruling that the proper district to enforce an FRCP Rule 45 motion against a social media provider is the district where it is headquartered, not where it has offices*
